

Victoria Lambourne

Victoria has recently returned to Coalescence from maternity leave and has seamlessly picked up where she left off. Her long-held and well-retained knowledge about the company and its work has become invaluable to the newer members of the team and her confident telephone manner is the envy of many a sales rep. She is the lady you will speak to about outstanding invoices and getting to the bottom of any complicated queries you may have. Her direct approach coupled with an empathic understanding of the work that we do is a winning combination, making Victoria a well-established and valuable member of the team.

Experience

Victoria has had a well-travelled and varied career including selling foreign rights for a literary agency in London, teaching English whilst working as a secretary in Hong Kong, and becoming a Cordon Bleu chef in Sydney. She worked briefly at the Royal United Hospital in Bath as a recruitment assistant before meeting Coalescence's Managing Director, Karen, on a reflexology course. When the two bumped into each other a few years later, Victoria was ready to move into the private sector and she joined Coalescence in their original Headquarters in South Gloucestershire.

Key Skills

- Problem-solving
- Extensive knowledge of our current and previous clients and their needs
- Confident and precise oral and written communication skills
- BA (Hons) Classical Civilization

Personal Preferences

- Escaping into a good book
- Globe-trotting
- Cordon Bleu cooking and well-made coffee
- Her three children
- ESFP